Paul plays a solid four in a bar feel for this rock ballad, alternating with more urgent eighths for bars 4/5 and 9/10 of (C). The third verse ( D) sees him improvising on a root-fifth theme for two bars, setting up the fourth bar of the verse with a C major scale to the F. He does the same at the bar before (E), going from F7 to B $\flat$ . Notice how, two bars before (G), Paul introduces quaver movement to complement the vocal line. This builds nicely into the round-and-round at the end of the song.
